OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY.

The News.

The great arch traitor, Jeff. Davis, has been formally indicted for high treason by a Grand Jury, and will be tried and executed according to the formalities of law.

Owing to Fred Seward's precurious condition, he has been kept in ignorance of the President's assassination until to-day. The grand military pageant that took place to-day in Washington is the most notable feature in the dispatches this evening. The Commercial's Washington letter says Mr. Dana has gone down to Fortress Monroe to give personal directions as to what is to be done with Jeff. Davis and those of his suite who were captured with him.

Worth Looking At.

Yesterday and to-day, a spectacle has been presented in the capital of this country that cannot fail to attract the attention, if not the admiration, of all the first class military powers of the world. A nation that has been for four years engaged in a bloody and fiercely contested civil war, has put down and vanquished its enemies, and is now disbanding its surplus soldiers. Twenty-one miles of troops sixty abreast, numbering 200,000 of the best warriors that ever faced a fee, is the grand and sublime spectacle to which we allude. They are not the undisiplined mass of raw recruits that melt away like wax before the hardships of a three month's campaign, but the thoroughly drilled soldiers who have box of choice strawberries, large, fully heat of many a well fought and hard won field of battle. From a peaceful, moneymaking and money loving nation, we have been transformed by this terrible war into a military power of the first magnitude. This mighty pageant serves as a weighty argument to convince foreign nations of the untold resources of this country, and to admonish them of the disastrous results to themselves in case of hostile collision with will be none the less. Let them look and be admonished.

The "Thunderer" as a Prophet.

[From the London Times, Nov. 26, 1860.] It is evident on the smallest reflection. that the South, even if united, could never resist for three months the greatly preponderating strength of the North.

[From the London Times of Sept. 14, 1864.] The public will admit that they have not been misguided by our comments. We said that the North could never subdue the South, and the North has now proclaimed the same conclusion.

[From the London Times of April 19, 1965.] The catastrophe seems complete, and in all its accessories calculated to impress people with a feeling that the work is accomplished, and that the civil war is really etween Lieutenant (ien eral Grant and the eminent subordinates who have led the armies of the Union to the magnificent triumphs of the last few months, there exists not merely perfect accord and harmony, but the fullest mutual confidence, the most fraternal esteem and trust. Each feels that the other has acted well his part, and that the conclusive victories of the Union cause do honor to each and all, being the fruits of their well-combined efforts and their perfect co-operation. We sincerely hope that it may be found practicable to hold the contemplated grand review near Washington, and that Grant, Sherman, Meade, Sheridan, Hancock, Howard, and their compeers, may all be present. It seems to us that the soldiers would be willing to postpone for a few days their eagerly awaited return to their homes in or ier to participate in such a parade, the like of which may not be seen on this continent for a century to come .- New York Tribune.

HON. CHARLES A. DANA .- It is with pleasure that we announce that lion. Charles A. Dana, at present Assistant Secretary of War, has accepted the offer made to him by the Chicago Republican Company, and will, therefore, be the Edi tor in Chief of the Chicago Republican, the first issue of which will be on Monday the 29th inst. Mr. Dana has a wide-spread fame in the world of letters. As the managing and controlling editor of the New York Tribune during many years, he earn ed a national reputation not exceeding, however, his real merit - Chicago Post.

THE New York Methodist makes disclosures damaging to Interior Secretary Usher, for his attempt to pass over 1,900 acres of Methodist missionary lands in Kansas to the heirs of one Johnston, a former border ruffian, on the strength of the claims of the Methodist Church, South. The Methodists have laid out $100,000 in improvements, and the lands are now of great value. It is strongly intimated that Usher has a pecuniary interest in robbing the church of them.

Miss Innorr has obtained a verdict of $10,000 damages from the Chicago and Milwaukee railroad company for the loss of a leg, occasioned by the sudden backing of the train while she was passing from a car to the platform, which caused her to fall upon the track in such a manner that her left leg and right foct were crushed by the wheels of the passing cars. The injury was so severe that immediate am putation of the right leg was rendered necessary to preserve life.

THE SALE DAY .- Indications point to a generous turn-out on the occasion of the sale day at the Fair grounds on Friday, the 26th inst. The plan and purposes of the gathering strike every one favorably, and we have no doubt that the manifest advantages of such an institution will increase the interest and profit of these stated market days. gan Central is one of the best managed roads in the country, and has always been a great favorite with the traveling public. Superintendent Rice, who has managed it so admirably for years, is still at his post, guiding affairs with that steady, evenhanded regularity which always wins popular regard.

The Great Western Railway will take you speedily and safely from Detroit to Suspension Bridge. You will like the spacious cars and the agreeable conductors, who strive to make your journey pleasant, as well as the certainty of getting through with the regularity of clock work. The men at the helm are Thomas Swinyard, Esq., General Manager, and J. Charlton, Esq., General Agent. They are the right men in the right places. From Buffalo to New York, we never go by any other route than by the old and reliable Erie. This road passes through some beautiful country, and the journey affords many lovely and picturesque views of scenery, rarely equalled in America. The road is gaining daily in popular favor, as might be expected from its careful and judicious management.

WHY JEFF DAVIS DRESSED IN HIS WIFE'S CLOTHES.—A Fortress Monroe correspondent of the Norfolk Old Dominion, writes It seems that Jeff, was induced to don his feminine disguise through the advice of Wade Hampton, who told him it was his only hope in escaping his Federal pur-suers. At this suggestion, it is eaid that Davis burst into a flood of tears at his abject condition, at the same time exclaiming that " Death would be a too great relief." But becoming reconciled, and learning that Wilson's cavalry was close in his rear, he exchanged his own garments for those that were brought him, and was let off in a by-road leading into some thick woods adjacent. But his hiding place was discovered, and it is said our scouts

FROM WASHINGTON-

Washington, May 22 -The afternoon session of the Committee for the trial of the assassins was quite brief, owing to the non-arrival of several Government wit-At four o'clock the Commission adjourned until ten o'clock to-morrow. There is no probability that at that time the witnesses can be brought to the court room, as every one seems determined to witness the military review that will be going on all day. It is likely, therefore, that the Commission will adjourn until

Thursday,
Most of the testimony this afternoon was orally cumulative upon the visits of Booth, Payue, Atzerotd, and others of the conspirators to the house of Mrs. Surratt, and as to the position of Harrold, Arnold, Spangler and O'Laughlin. No new feature of great material interest was brought out as affecting directly the prisoners at of the rebel Lieut. W. Allston, which was found among the archives of the rebel War Department surrendered by Johnston The proposition of the writer to rid the country of its deadliest enemies, meaning Mr. Lincoln and his cabinet by assassinating them, was shown to have been entertained by Jeff Davis, and he had directed his private secretary to refer the matter to the rebel Secretary of War for his consideration. When the reading of the letter was concluded an audible murmur of horror was heard from all parts of stroyed one-third of the town. Loss $30, the room, especially among the ladies, who made such exciamations as, "Oh, the monster," "Oh, horrible! Shame! Shame." This was the first direct testimony yet produced in the case, showing that Davis at any time entertained the idea of assassinating the President, and the heads of the departments, and its importance was en hanced by the fact that the references by Davis to his Secretary of War was dated in December last, at which time it has been clearly proved that Booth and some of his organized confederates were actually engaged and plotting for the murder of Mr. Lincoln. The introduction of the letter establishes the fact beyond any doubt, if it be good for no other purpose, that Davis was not only capable of entertaining proposals for assassinating our President, but was willing to treat with cold-blooded villians for its accomplishment. The link in the chain of evidence that directly convicts Booth and the prisoners in an agreement with Davis, to murder Lincoln and Mr. Seward, has not been produced in the trial, but may yet be offered before the government closes its testimony.

Washington, May 22.—The Court today examined one witness in secret ses sion, when the doors of the Court were opened. The evidence taken on Saturday was read. An unusually large number of spectators, including a number of ladies were present. Judging from their actions and continuous talking, they were most interested in the appearance of the prison-

Washington, May 23.—Thousands of persons including many from other cities, who have specially come hither to see the pageant, line the sidewalk from the Capitol to the Executive Mansion, a distance of a mile and a half, while windows and balconies and all eligible positions including house tops, were occupied by deeply interested spectators. Public business was suspended and there was a general holiday. The Capitol bore the motto in large letters:

The only national debt we can not pay, is the debt we owe to the ever victorious Union soldiers." At the north of the Capitol, at least 2,000 school girls were assembled, neatly dressed, and there was much pleasant excitement among them in pressing forward to present flowers to the soldiers. The sehool children sung patriotic songs. New York, May 24.—The Time's Washngton special has the following: The new revenue commissioner, Mr. Orton, will enter upon his official duties on the 1st of the Tennessee. A special dispatch to the Philadelphia Inquirer says the elder Blair was called before the Grand Jury of Chief Justice Cartus, U. S. Court, and testified as to the acts of treason committed by Jeff Davic. They agreed to report a true bill. This action is understood to be in conformity with the wishes of the administration.

THE CAPTURE OF JEFF. DAVIS. New York, May 24 .- The Herald's cor-

and contiguous to these, were two common army wagons, two ambulances, and several horses and mules, with the usual amount of camp parapnernalia, such as saddies, bridles, harness, cooking utensils &c. Duvis, himself, and Postmaster Regan, with the two Colonels Lubback and Johnson, Aid de Camps, had only overtaken the party the night before after a fatigueing journey from Washington, Ga., where they had remained to settle some business as they say, when Mrs Davis with the children and servants had pushed forward under the protection and escort of private Secretary Harrison and a few faithful fol-

It was probably at or very near Washington where Davis dismissed his escort and divided the spoils under the must trying circumstances. Some of Stoneman's army were hard upon him and he concluded to deceive them by letting them follow the body of the cavalry while he and his friends traveled incog. across the country and joined his family.

When Regan asked permission to accompany Davis to Washington, and expressed his obligations on receiving it, Gen. Wilson said to him, "You are under no obligations, sir, for I should have sent you whether you wanted to go or not. You are a civilian prisoner and he (Davis) is a prisoner both military and sivil."

Mrs. Clay remarked, jocularly, that as she had brought in her husband, she would laim the reward offered for him, to which Mrs. Davis responded, "Yes, $100,000 would be considerable of an amount of pocket money to us poor unfortunates. I sold my horses, carriage, silver ware and jewelry, for what little money I had, but t has been stolen from me."

Stephens was arrested on his plantation only a short distance from Atlanta, by a squad of Gen. Upton's men under a Captain and staff officers whose names I have forgotten. Stephens made no effort to escape, but was found at his house quietly smoking his meerschaum. He had no companions save two negro servants and a dog, and lived almost entirely in solitude. Stephens said to me that when he went to Hampton Roads in company with Judge Campbell and Mr. Hunter to meet the President, he could have made satisfactory terms of peace in five minutes. He was not, however, clothed with the proper authority and hence his mission failed.

San Francisco, May 22 .- Gen. # FROM INDIANA.

Indianapolis, May 23 .- Gov. Morton has suggested to the Secretary of War the propriety of issuing an order directing that all field, staff and line officers now in service about to be mustered out with their respective commands, who have been promoted and commissioned to higher grades in respective regiments and companies but who have not been mustered in said grades by reason of said commands being below minimum strength, be so mustered in before the date of their muster out. It is claimed that the officers have assumed all responsibilities and discharged all du tics connected with the positions to which they have been commissioned for meritorious services, and that while their muster in would not increase their pay, nor in any way affect the government, it would be regarded by them as a valued compliment, a mark of appreciation and recognition of their faithful services in saving and restoring the country. The co opera-tion of governors of other States has been invited to secure the issuence of the order mentioned.

FROM NORTH CAROLINA.

New York, May 24.—The North Carolina correspondent of the Recald continues to furnish interesting accounts of the progress of events in that State, attendant on the offorts of the citizens with the nasistance of Gen. Schofield and his army, to reorganize society and restore civil government. Their candidates for Gov. hav already been named and the supporters of each are preparing to establish their claims.

On the 15th, Gen. Schoffeld issued another order in regard to the colored people, informing them that the acquirement of their freedom imposes obligations which they must meet, as well as conferring on them the boon of freedom, and they were told that they will not be supported in idleness, but must labor for the support of themselves and their families.

The thinking and unbiased portion of the community will appreciate the great advantage of a permanent and reliable Institute for the cure of shronic diseases that usually baffe the skill of the general practitioner. Catarrh, that great promoting cause of Consumption in the Northwest, always gives way upon as plication of the new remedies. Dr. Hale has never encountered a case of this disease he could not cure. The present season is very favorable for applying proper remedies; delays are dangerous. Your case may be cured this month, not next, to-day, not to-morrow.

All who are suffering from any of the diseases Dr. Hale makes a speciality in treating, should at least call and investigate the new system for themselves. No person of good sense and sound judgment will, without full and careful investigation, denounce as "humburg" that which claims to possess merit.

Dr. Hale takes pleasure in referring to the following responsible parties, citizens of Janesville, who can speak knowingly as to the efficacy of Dr. Hale's treatment, not to mention hundreds of others in the Northwest that have been cured:

SECRET REBEL HISTORY.

Interesting Statement of the Position of Davis and the Confederate Government --- Unpopularity of Jeff. Davis.

The following letter was written by a gentleman who occupied the position of private secretary to one of the most influential members of Jeff. Davis' Cabinet throughout the rebellion. It comes, therefore, from one well qualified to set forth the actual condition of affairs in the rebel capital during the latter days of the re-bellion. It gives an interior view of the movements and sentiments of the rebel government such as it has not been possi-ble to obtain hitherto. R. D. F. Richmond, Monday May 15, 1865.

Owing to the mystery of secret sessions and the reticence observed by the journals, much of the real history of this great struggle remains to be written. It is known to the world that Mr. Davis wielded to the last the full powers of the South, and that the Southern Congress granted nearly all his requests for power, insatiable as he seemed to be in this respect. But it is not so well known that he was unpopular with the leading statesmen of the South. They thought lightly of his capacity, and deemed him an incubus unon their cause. Some opposed him openly but the majority, while deploring his errors, did not think it a fit period for opposition. Among the former class were Orr, Toombs, Wigfall, Graham. Among the latter were Messrs. Campbell, Cobb, Hunter, and many others. On the other hand, Mr. Davis had a cordial hatred for Congress, and took no pains to conceal it. One of his last proceedings was to send in a special message, which, when analyzed, was found to be nothing less than a carefully prepared bill of indictment, and designed to throw upon the Congress all the odium in the event of a failure. This document elicited a severe reply from the Senate, at which body it was supposed to be specially aimed. No person, perhaps, ever occupied prominent position who availed himself so little of the wisdom or experience of others as Mr. Davis. He was rudely intolerant of any difference of opinion, and seemed to rejuice in isolation from those who were likely to express an independent judgment. His despotism over his cabinet was supreme. He admitted that he knew nothing of finance, but upon all other subjects made no pretence of modes-When the southern congress met in No-vomber last, Mr. Davis sent in a message which was, upon the whole, of a confident tone. He seemed to take no account of armies, and still less of the constancy, deaccept as gospel this cheerful manifesto, and accordingly a resolution was offered by Mr Caperton for a joint committee to look into the condition of public affairs. The necessary effect of this was to compel the administration to look into its own hand, and this motion Mr. Davis regarded and resented as a hostile proceeding. This investigation lasted a month or more and the resolutions it provoked produced a marked effect upon the temper and spirit of the southern congress, which, some weeks after the informal conferences at Fortress Monroe, ripened into action. A movement was organized, of which Senators Hunter, of Va., Graham of North Carolina and Orr, of South Carolina, were the leading rebels, to induce the President to negotiate for peace and secure the best terms possible for the South. Judge Campbell, the Assistant Secretary of War, labored earnestly and constantly to this end, and it is understood that Mallaroy, of the cabinet, was anxious for the adoption of their policy. It was perfectly obvious to the reflecting men of the Confederacy that to continue the contest for independence was a hopeless pursuit followed in the end by rule and subjugation. It was believed that while the southerners had two large armies in the field, possession of their capital and organized government, they could, with this show of strength, secure liberal terms upon the basis of a restoration of the Union. It was believed that Mr. Lincoln and Mr. Seward would favor a policy of conciliation. In a word, these men held that reconstruction was infinitely preferable to subjugation. Continue the contest, and the upshot would be that no terms whatever could be obtain-

Views of this sort were pressed by Mr. Hunter and others upon Mr. Davis, and for a long while it seemed with some prospect of securing his assent. But the Richmond Enquirer, Sentinel and Whig were furious in their denunciations of any reconstruction. In a little while Mr. Davis began to be jealous of Hunter, and he, his clique and organs, spared no pains to break him down. Feeling that his effort to save his state from fresh calamity was unavailing, Mr. Hunter, at the close of the session, retired to his home in Essex coundent Davis was complete and final. The The breach between him and Presimajority of both houses of the Confederate Congress were ready for peace negotiations, but nothing could be done without the co-operation of the Executive. The ultra war men and presses denounced all who thought there was danger ahead as "croakers" and "whipped men." The masses of the people knew little of the actual situation, and were ready and anxious to fight as long as there was a reasonable prospect of success. There can be no doubt, however, that they were greatly exhausted and wearied of the war, and if their rulers had sought an honorable pacification they would have sustained them.

One of the men whose hatred to Davis was most intense and bitter was Wigfall, of Texas. He declared that success with Jefferson Davis at the helm was impossible —that his incapacity and obstinacy would ruin any cause in the world, and befavored a counter revolution to depose him. He proposed publicly to coerce Davis and Steproposed publicly to coerce Davis and Stephens to resign, and it is probable that the President's jealousy of Hunter, who would thus have succeeded, excited by this project, had no small share in defeating the scheme of the latter to open negotiations for peace.

The amount of specie taken hence by the Cenfederate government has been greatly overrated. It did not much exceed half a million of dollars; but a large proportionsay half-was in silver, and hence the bulk would give the idea of a greater value. The Richmond banks took away their specie, and this amount may have reached severali millions of dollars. It is an error to suppose that Mr. Davis took away this or any amount of specie with the idea of providleast idea that the Confederacy was about to tumble. The coin was to huv funds for a war in America—to buy food and muni-tions of war. He thought, in his folly, he could give up the capital, and the great State of Virginia, and, with the cotton states, keep up the contest until the North hould be wearied out. At the beginning of the war, the seven cotton states thought that by their staple they could coerce Chrisendom, the North included; and of this folly of standing alone their leaders had not been entirely cured. Mr. Davis halted at Danville with the intention of locating his government there. He stayed just one day. On hearing of Lee's surrender, and that there was no organized body of troops between him and Grant, he set out for Charlotte, N. C., intending to fix his capital there. Even after Lee's capitula-tion, he seemed utterly unable to grasp the situation. He still thought himself able to make war for peace, as he pleased; and it is reported that he even hesitated at accepting the terms granted by Sherman, and subsequently set aside by President Johnson. After spending three or four days at Greensboro, he left for Charotte, where he proposed to locate his capital, open up government houses, confer promotions, appoint Generals, &c. Noth-ing could exceed his infatuation. He wasted time which, for his escape, was invaluable, in keeping up the forms of a govern-ment which had no existence. The train of government and bank specie had already started for the South. Of his own safety Mr. Davis seemed to take little He functed himself at the head of a powerful people, able to marshal armies and offer battle to the North - He did not realize that his fortunes were desperate. In the midst of all this delusion came at an end; and then Mr. Davis and his struggling. Joe Johnston has some 25,000 men, Lee 35,000, and in all there were my was inferior. The horses of the cavalthe waning resources and spirit of the former were so greatly reduced in numbers south, or the diminished numbers of her that they were utterly insufficient to that they were utterly insufficient to termination and power of the north. The How Mr. Davis could shut his eyes to all members of congress were not disposed to this, is perfectly marvelous; but he did, and when people spoke to him of negotiation, he doubted and arraigned their patvis, stating that he could neither hold his And yet it is said that in a speech at Charlotte, Mr. Davis spoke of his inability to understand why a force of 12,000 men should surrender. Judge Campbell constantly pressed upon the attention of the government the fact that the war could not be carried on, in the vain hope that, unable to dispute the statement, they would draw the necessary inference and consent to negotiations upon the basis of reconstruction. But he counted without

A Blographer of Mr. Lincoln.

Robert Dale Owen has received from one of our enterprising and successful publish-ing houses, and has accepted, a liberal offer to prepare and complete within the next two years a life of Abraham Lincoln, that when the spring weather permitted, to be comprised in two duodeelmo volumes the immense masses of Grant and Sherman to be precipitated upon them, the southern armies would be utterly insufficient to resist the shock. To go on was simply to cause a useless effusion of blood, only to be followed in the and by while an early insufficient to be comprised in two duodeelmo volumes of four to five hundred pages each, for the heat of the fight an officer rode up to him and said, "General Buell wants in larger form, is to be issued. Mr. Owen's proposed work has a different scope. It proposes to portray, from his own personal recollections, and the recollections of those who best knew the man, Abraham Lincoln, in his house-hold relations, his public policy and his inner life. It will be strictly a hiography, inner life. It will be strictly a biography, not a history of the Presidential term. The public positions which Mr. Owen held during the war, bringing him into constant contact with Mr. Lincoln and his chief advisors, enable him to start with valuable materials. Being now relieved from public business, he will devote himself exclusively to the work.

A Reminiscence of Mr. Lincoln. On the day of the receipt of the capituthe Cabinet meeting was held an hour earlier than usual. Neither the President nor any member was able, for a time, to give utterance to his feelings. At the suggestion of Mr. Lincoln, all dropped on their knees, and offered in silence and in tears, their humble and heartfelt acknowledgements to the Almighty, for the tri-umph he had granted to the national cause. The same day, in the afternoon, as we learn from the same source, the President was in a frame of mind peculiarly happy. To his wife he said: "The war is now about over; we have had a long and wearisome four years' seige, and we must travel a little this summer, and recruit. It must be without fuss or display. You must write Bob that he must come home and resign his Captaincy and go to his books. Let him prepare to earn his living as I did, depending on his own hands and brains." On the morning of the day of his death kindred conversations were held as to the manner of spending a portion of the summer, and what disposition should be made of "Bob" and "Tad," as he used to call least pluck, he could have averted this his sons, Robert and Thaddens.—Western war. But he was destitute of both heart

Dr. Verdi, (homospathic,) the family physician of Secretary Seward, gives the following account of the wounds which the assassin Paine inflicted. We believe no such specific description has hitherto been published: * * * Among the bleeding men and terrified ladies I sought for Mr. Seward.

He was lying in his bed covered with blood, a fearful gaping gash marking his chin, and extending below the maxillary bone. His, probably, was the only countenance that did not express fear. On examining further, I found another stab under the left ear, wounding the parotid gland; but this cut, however, was not very deep. Mr. Seward had lost much blood, and I immediately applied ice to arrest the bleeding temporar-; after which I was informed that Federick Seward was in an adjacent room, also injured. # Blography of Gen. Fry.

The New York Mercury gives a sketch of the life and services of Mr. Provost Marshal General Fry. He is a native of Illicois thirty eight years of age. As a scholar he was distinguished for his stu-pidity in mathematics. By and by he went to West Point, and graduated No. 14 of his class. He had hard work to sat-isfy his father that that was a better number than No. 1. The war found him on McDowell's staff, at Bull Run, where no mathematical talent being necessary, he did good service, and ran well. Next, he was with General McClellan, who, being a mathematician, could not get along with him, and sent him to General each but was utterly unable to tell how many there were in both. At length, after many repeated efforts, he gave a yell of mingled shame, despair and defiance, and dashed straight at the enemy, to vent his rage upon them. His men followed him; the encing, seeing Fry coming, turned tail and the victory was won.

For this achievement he was promoted

Surrender of Confederate Navy.

The last vestige of the confederate navy surrendered at Mobile on the 10th. The scene was in the highest degree impressive. The rebel officers were drawn up on the quarter deck, and the crows mustered forward, and as the symbol of the rebellion fluttered for a moment at the masthead before being hauled down forever, the chief officers bowed their heads, as thoughts rushed through their minds of On the day of the receipt of the capital lation of Lee, as we learn from a friend the government they had so greatly out-intimate with the late President Lincoln, the Cabinet meeting was held an hour ter dependence upon the elemency of that government. It was a bitter lesson for hose erring, but brave men. No wonder that their emotions were powerful; no wonder that they seemed downcast; for the descent of the rebel ensign carried with it to oblivion their every hope and ambition. On the success of the rebellion they had staked life, honor and every interest. They have lost. The only favor they can expect from the United States is to be allowed to retire into obscurity.

THE New York Herald has taken to telling the truth so plainly, for some time past, that we hope the habit will become chronic with it. Here is what it says most justly of our Ex-Presidents:

Ex-President Buchanan has been publishing a letter to prove that he was not a traitor. If he was not a traitor he was the next thing to it. He was a weak, trimming politician, who abandoned his country in his last message, and declared that it was unconstitutional to save the Union. If he had been a patriot with the and brains, and so consented to disunion.
All of our ex-Presidents now living are half-and-half secessionists. Poor Pierce, Buchanan, and Fillmore are in pretty nearly the same boat. Tyler, who died during the war, was a rebel. Compared with the fame of President Lincoln, who was assassinated by the rebellion, the miserable old politicians are eclipsed by

We have always heard Davis lauded as a great military man. But it seems he does not even know how to "right dress."

Report of the Committee on the Conduct of the War.

The investigations of the Committee of the Conduct of the War, have recalled many things of interest to the public. Among them are gisaned the following: THE RED RIVER DIGASTER.

The most emple testimony has been taken bearing on the Bed River campaign, and it is of a character most damaging to any military pretensions of Gen. Banks. It demonstrates him to have been guilty of a mercenary motive, either for the ben-efit of himself or friends, in the purpose of the expedition, and of incompetence in conducting it. It will turn out to be one of the most discreditable transactions of the war. It would seem to have no legitimate object, and to have been conceived and prosecuted merely as a grand cotton speculation venture to put money in the pockets of private citizens, and to subserve which, the army and navy of the Southwest were placed under the control of the speculators. It may be added that all the ficers now in Washington steadfastly refuse to father the Red River Expedition. Secretary Stanton did not order it; Gen. Grant did not direct it; and Halleck swears that he knew not a word about it until after it had failed. Gen. Grant entertains, and is not slow to express in these volumes, the most contemptible opinion of Gen. Banks; indeed the language of his comments on the affair was so severe, that the Committee, in making up their report, preferred not to quote FORT PIGHER.

The committee examined carefully all the circumstances of the first failure at Fort Fisher, and Gen. Butler is substantially vindicated by the report. Butler, Weitzel, Terry, Porter, have testified, and their testimony, all points in the same di-rection—that he was warranted in declining to make the attack for which he has been so much consured. Terry says it was a fair open military question whether to land and attack or not. Weitzel, the friend of Gen. Grant, says that if he had gone at the head of such an expedition, with entire discretion in the matter, he never would have put a man ashore. Butlor's fault seems to have been (a technical one) a violation of a peremtory order from Gen. Grant to land and intrench at all hazards. This, as a military matter, it was his duty to do. But he justifies himself before the committee by alleging that on account of the flerceness of the tempest, and the proximity of the rebel force, such an effort would have been perilous, and in his opinion would have failed with great loss of life. As to the leadership of expedition. Gen. Grant swears that it was not intended that Butler should go, and that Butler knew he was not to go. On the other hand, Butler swears that it was intended that he should go, and that Grant knew he was going. It seems probable that one or the other of these gentlemen is mistaken. Testimony of other Generals shows that Butler, commanding the Department, had a perfect right to accompany the expedition unless commanded not to do so, and that it was the most natural thing in the world for him to go in com-

MINE AT PETERSBURG.

The public have already received an intimation that the testimony exonerates Gen. Burnside and involves Gen. Meade for the fiasco in front of Petersburg. Grant himself admits in his testimony that Burnside would probably have succeeded if he had been left alone with his negro troops. These volumes seem to show that Gen. Mende lacks confidence in himself and takes counsel of his apprehension rather than his hope.

ORTHYSBURG, STC.
This view is quite confirmed by the furher evidence adduced in considering the BELT BUCKLE OR BELT, Gettysburg battle, and the campaigns from the Rappahannock to the James. The investigations of the Committee into the conduct of the Potomac army has been ve- ALPACA BRAID and SET BUTTONS. ry extensive and thorough, and the whole tendency of the testimony is decidedly detrimental to the generalship of Gen. Meade. It will show that after the battle of Gettysburg, it was perfectly practica-ble to capture Lee's whole army before re-crossing the Potomac. The evidence concurring on this point is of great weight It would seem from the testimony, Meade never made an advance, his whole policy being defensive. He is sufficiently conrageous, personally, but at the head of an army he has all the caution that paralyzed McClellan. It is said, however, in Gen. Meade's favor, that he has never over estimated himself, and has little of that vanity which has possessed some commanders of less caliber than himself, and of a similar cautious temperament.

For want of time, testimony has not been taken in full, in regard to the investment and occupation of Richmond and the capture of Lee's army, but very comprehensive questions, covering all of this, have been put to Gen. Grant, and inter-rogatories of similar tenor, covering the march of the great Western Army, have been submitted to General Sherman; and the formal replies to these questions will constitute a large part of the 8th volume, the 5th of the present series. It is not quite true that Gen. Sherman has refused to appear before the Committee; he has merely failed to appear in answer to

Perhaps the most startling development of the forthcoming volumes will be the evidence which they furnish of the Cheyenne massacre of Indians by Col. Chevington, in Colorado Territory. It proves to have been a most brutal and unprovoked slaughter of men, women and children, who were living in a quiet manner in a state of entire peace with the whites. The labora of the Committee bearing upon this national disgrace are embraced in a pamphlet of a hundred pages, and exhibit the af-fair in the most barbarous light as a shame to the civilization of the age. THE CULTIVATOR OF CORN.—The large smount of cosp to be planted this season, renders it mecessary for the producer to have some improved implement for its cultivation. To meet this demand, I am now building "The Badger State" gig corn planter.

After six months experimenting with different medels, we have one which we are willing should be put to the test, and that it should stand or fall on its own merits. A lengthy description does not seem to be necessary. We will simply say that we are confident it will perform all that any cultivator will, and all that any farmer will require of it. It has six shovels, or four, as desired. The shovels are so arranged as to cultivate wide or narrow, shallow or deep; and they all have a very easy side motion. To say that they are made under the supervision of G. F. Lane, is a sufficient guarantee that they will be ed in every respect. The Badger State gig cultivator will be sold this season at $50 at the shop. Call and see it at the shop one block well made. In fact, they will be warrant-the rate levied on other property. SUBSCRIBE QUICKLY.

Less than $200,000,000 of the Loan authorized by the last Congress are now on the market. This amount, at the rate at which it is being absorbed, will all be subscribed for within two months, when the notes will undoubtedly command a premium, as has uniformly been the case on closing the subscriptions to other Loans. It now seems probable that no considerable amount beyond the present series will be offered to the public.

In order that citizens of every town and section of the country may be afforded facilities for taking the loan, the National Banks, State Banks, and Private Bankers throughout the country have generally agreed to receive subscriptions at par. Subscribers will select their own agents, in whom they have confidence, and who only are to be responsible for the delivery of the notes for which they receive orders.

BEWARE OF AMBUSCADES.

Few people realize the fact that disease Hes in ambush averywhere, ready to seize upon the weak. The strong pass through many perils in safety; the strongthless fall by the wayside.

It is amazing that the feeble should totter with uncertain steps over the face of the earth in danger every day of falling victims to the morbid influences by which we are all surrounded, when a tested and provon vegetable tenic, capable of cardowing them with the vigor they need, is procurable in every city, town, and settlement. It might reasonably be thought that after the twelve years' experience which the world has had of Resizviza's Stomace Butters, all would know that its effect is to prevent disease.

The fact is notorious that a disc of poison which will etwoolyfulect a vigorous man in perfect health will kill a weak one. Now, what is the cause of epidemic diseases? Poison in the air. At this season the atmosphere is surcharged with the scods of intermittents remittents, rheumatism, pulmonary disorders, billious complaints, and the like. Persons whose nervous sys tems are relaxed are the first to succumb to these dis, tempers. Brace up the physical energies, then, with this potential vegetable tonic. It is the most powerful recuperant which the botanic kingdom has eve violded to patient research and experiment. Tov it. The blindest disciple of the old medical dogmas will a lesst admit that a tonic and afterative, compounded of approved herbs, roots, and barks, can do no harm while the testimony of thousands invites a trial of its

Washiston, Jan. 18. 1863.

Gentlemen:—Having stated it verbally toyon, I have se hesitation in writing the fact, that I experienced marked benefit from your Hoofand's German Hitters.

Buring a long and tections session of Congress, pressing and enserous duties nearly prostrated me. A kind freed suggested the use of the preparation I have meased. I took his advice, and the result was improvement of health, renewed energy, and that particular relief I so much needed and obtained. Others may be similarly advantaged if they desire to be.

Truly your friend, THOMAS B. FLORENCE.

From John 28. Withersham, Esq., firm of Withersham and Hutchinson, the celebrated mann-heturers of Fancy Iron Works, 259 Canal street:
I am the recipient from your of one of the grentest swore that can be conferred upon man, vir., that of health. For many years have I suffered from one or the most annoying and deblishing complaints that the human family can be afflicted with, Chronic Diarrheas.

During the long time I was suffering from this dis-same, I was attended by regular physicians, giving me has I was attended by regular physicians, giving me has tamporary relief. The cames seemed to remain antil I was induced to try Hoodland's German Bitters after the use of a few bottles of that valuable meets size, the complaint appeared to be completely cradi-cated. ested.
I often inwardly thank you for such a valuable specific, and, when I have an opportunity, cheerfully resonant it, with full confidence in its reliability.

Gentlemen:—In reply to your inquiry as to the elect produced by the use of Hoofland's German Hitter-Gentlemen:—In reply to your inquiry feet produced by the use of itooffand's German Bitter in my family, I have no hesitation in saying that it has been highly beneficial. In one instance, a case of dyspepula of thirteen years' standing, and which has become very districting, the use of one bottle gave de cided relief, the second effecting a cure, and the third it seems, has confirmed the cure, for there has been no symptoms of its return for the last six years. It my individual use of it, I find it to be an unequalic

PRILAMPHIA, December 28th, 1863.

Massra. Jones & Boars—Genitamen: I have recently been laboring under the distressing effects of indiges flow, accompanied by a prostration of the nervous system. Numerous remedies were recommended by Seigada, and some of them tested but without reheit Tour Hoodand's German Bitters were recommended by Persons who had tried them, and whose favorablemention of the Bittern induced me also to try them. I must confess that I had an aversion to Patent Medical Seigada, and seems to be to path off section and changed liquor upon the community, in a siy way: and the tendency of which, I fear, is to make many a confirmed drunkard. Upon learning that yours was really a medicinal preparation, I took it with happy effect. It as ection not only upon the stemach, but upon the nervous system, was prompt and gratifying. I feet that I have derived great and permanent benefit from the size of a few bottler.

Very respectfully yours, W. D. SEIGRIED, No. 254 Shackamavon Street.

From the Riew. Thes. Winter, D. D., Pastor of Boxbary Baptist Church:

Dr. Jackson—Deav Sw: I feel it due to your excellent proparation, Hoofiend's German Bitters, to add my testimony to the deserved reputation it has obtained. I have for years, at times, been troubled with great disorder in my head and nervous system. I was advised by a friend to try a bottle of your German Bitters. I did so, and have experienced great and unsupected railef; my health has been very materially benefitted. I confidently recommend the article where I meet with cases similar to my own, and have been assured by many of their good effects.
